

Justin Moravec is the Security Specialist for Wildcard Corp., a security-focused technology company located in Stevens Point. Justin holds a Bachelor's Degree in Cybersecurity. Prior to Wildcard, Justin worked with the Department of Defense, specializing in information security. His extensive experience in his field makes him an expert analyst with a strong emphasis on intelligence exploitation and information technology. As part of the Wildcard team, Justin helps develop secure solutions for government clients such as the Federal Bureau of Investigation, as well as local municipal clients including the City of Madison.

Justin is pleased to participate in this year's Energy panel, and share his insight on security initiatives, security best practices, and current threat trends facing U.S. energy providers. He hopes his participation will provide insight about the importance of security in this industry and awareness about the steps you can take to keep your technology systems secure.